Chibub and Bunubu: The Cloud in the Burrow
Learning where and when to use our gifts helps everyone feel happy and cared for

One morning, Bunubu woke up to a soft drip on his nose. Drip, drip, drip!

He looked up and saw a tiny cloud stuck in the ceiling of his burrow.

The cloud sniffled and rained gently onto Bunubu's favorite carrot rug.

'Oh dear,' said Bunubu. 'Carrot rugs are not supposed to be soup!'

Bunubu called up through the garden crack, and soon Chibub floated down with a pocket full of sky glow.

'This little cloud needs to remember how to float,' said Chibub kindly.

Chibub showed Pufflet how to puff up, lift its edges, and bob gently like a feather in the sky.

Bunubu placed a tiny bucket underneath and explained, 'When you are indoors, please hold your drips until you are outside.'

Pufflet practiced floating without dripping. Soon it rose from the ceiling and wobbled happily toward the garden crack.

Outside, Pufflet made one polite little rain shower for the flowers. Bunubu dried his carrot rug, Chibub smiled, and the tiny cloud promised to visit only on outdoor watering days.

About the Author

Vijay Kukreja

Vijay is a creative writer, technologist, and storyteller who enjoys turning simple ideas into imaginative stories for young readers. His stories are shaped by his own experiences, observations, family life, and curiosity about how technology can support human creativity.

With the help of AI tools, Vijay explores characters, scenes, visuals, and story worlds in new ways. He uses these tools not as a replacement for imagination, but as a creative partner to help bring playful ideas to life.

His goal is to create fun, warm, and engaging stories that children can enjoy, parents can share, and families can read together.
