Chibub and Bunubu: The Crystal Staircase
When different voices come together, they can create something beautiful.

One sparkling morning, Bunubu discovered a glowing crystal step growing from the floor of his burrow.

By lunchtime, another step appeared above it.
Then another. And another.

The crystal steps climbed all the way upward
through the roots, toward Chibub's sunny balcony.

Curious, Bunubu stepped on the first crystal.
Boing! It sang a silly low note.

The second crystal chirped. The third whistled.
The fourth sounded like a giggling trumpet.

Meanwhile, Chibub heard strange music drifting up to his balcony and followed the sound to the top of the staircase.

When Chibub and Bunubu met in the middle,
every crystal step began singing its own note at once.

The staircase turned into a giant musical instrument. Together they hopped from step to step, creating cheerful songs.

Soon birds, beetles, worms, and cloud sparrows joined in, making the funniest concert either world had ever heard.

At sunset, the crystals glowed softly and played one final lullaby. From then on, the Crystal Staircase became a musical bridge between Chibub's balcony and Bunubu's burrow.
