Chibub and Bunubu: The Underground Rainbow
Curiosity and teamwork can uncover wonderful surprises in unexpected places.

After a gentle rain shower, Chibub spotted a beautiful rainbow stretching across the sky.

But something strange happened. Instead of fading away, one end of the rainbow slipped right into the ground.

Curious, Chibub followed the rainbow trail to Bunubu's garden and called for his friend.

Together they climbed into the tunnels beneath the garden and followed colorful glimmers dancing along the roots.

Deep underground, they discovered that the rainbow's colors had spread through the tunnels.

Red and orange painted the mushrooms. Blue and green shimmered across the tunnel walls. Purple sparkled on tiny pebbles.

The funniest sight of all was a group of sleeping beetles covered in rainbow stripes from head to toe.

When the beetles woke up, they thought they had become magical rainbow bugs and proudly marched around the tunnels.

Chibub used a little sky glow while Bunubu guided the colors back toward the rainbow, helping it gather itself together.

The rainbow floated back into the sky, leaving just a few colorful sparkles behind. Chibub and Bunubu smiled, knowing they had shared another wonderful adventure between sky and burrow.
